GENERAL STATEMENT.

The School of the Political Sciences offers work covering the last two years of an undergraduate course. In quantity and quality, the work is the equivalent of that required for the junior and senior years of a standard college of liberal arts.

In preparing the course of study, special attention has been given to the requirements of those who are preparing for public service including the Foreign Service of the United States, for those wishing to enter the field of Foreign Trade and for those intending to pursue the study of law. The school also offers general cultural courses for those majoring in Political Science, International Law and Foreign Trade.

The lectures in this school will be given before eight-fifty in the morning or after four-forty-five in the afternoon thus rendering them available for those employed during the day.

LOCATION.

The work of administration and instruction in the School of the Political Sciences is carried on at the Downtown Center, F Street, between Nineteenth and Twentieth Streets, Northwest.

The Campus of about ninety acres on which are situated the main buildings of the College of Liberal Arts extends along the highest ridge in the District of Columbia in the northwest section, overlooking the City of Washington.

The lecture halls of the School are within four blocks of the principal buildings of seven of the ten Departments of the Federal Government (State, War, Navy, Treasury, Interior, Commerce and Labor); and also, four blocks or less from the White House, Interstate Commerce Commission, Federal Trade Commission, Civil Service Commission, National Academy of Science, Corcoran Art Gallery, Red Cross, Daughters of the American Revolution, Pan-American Union and City Auditorium.

WASHINGTON AS AN EDUCATIONAL CENTER.

The educational resources of Washington are almost limitless. There are fifty embassies and legations of foreign governments. The Library of Congress has over 3,000,000 volumes, 170,000 maps, 919,000 pieces of music, 424,783 photographs, prints and engravings. The Public Library has 227,500 volumes and 50,000 mounted pictures. The Bureau of Standards has a scientific staff of 550 specialists. Work done in the Bureau is accepted by the best of universities. Among other facilities for research work in Washington are: The Smithsonian Institution, the New National Museum, the Pan-American Union, the United States Public Health Service, the Bureau of Education, the Department of Labor, the Woman's Bureau, the Children's Bureau, the Bureau of American Ethnology, the National Zoological Park, the Bureau of Scientific Literature, the Corcoran Gallery of Art, the Corcoran School of Art, the National Gallery of Art, the Freer Gallery of Art, the Carnegie Institution, the offices of fifty-four national patriotic and welfare organizations, the offices of forty-three religious bodies, the offices of twenty-nine scientific societies and headquarters of twelve reform associations. The free resources afforded by Washington for research work could not be provided by hundreds of millions dollars in endowments.

UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES.

The University has a general library of about 30,000 volumes. In addition to this there are department libraries in connection with the schools. In some of these there are exceptional opportunities for students as they have constant access to the standard works on the various subjects, and in some courses, a very unusual collection.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY SCHOOLS.

The College of Liberal Arts of the American University is located on the Campus, Massachusetts and Nebraska Avenues, Northwest. Four years college course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts is offered. Fire-proof Women's Residence for two hundred students.

The School of the Political Sciences is located at 1907 F Street Northwest. This is a professional school requiring two years of college work as an entrance requirement. A two-year course is given in the political sciences leading to the degree of Bachelor of Political Science.

The Graduate School of American University offers work leading to the advanced degrees of Master of Arts, Master of Political Science, and Doctor of Philosophy. The School controls all graduate work of the University, and recommends the graduate degrees.

Catalogs of these schools will be furnished upon request.

DIVISIONS OF THE SCHOLASTIC YEAR.

The scholastic year is divided into two semesters of seventeen weeks each.

FEES.

A matriculation fee of five dollars is payable upon admission to the University.

The tuition fee is one hundred dollars a semester, payable in advance.

All students receiving a degree from the American University will pay at least one full year tuition.

Students registered for less than full number of courses will pay in proportion.

Students having completed all courses required for a degree may take cultural courses for which they will pay one-half regular tuition.

Tuition fees are not returnable except in case of sickness or causes entirely beyond the control of the student. No portion of the returnable fees shall be returned for voluntary withdrawal after thirty days from date of registration of the student. In no case will more than one-half of the fees be refunded.

A diploma fee of ten dollars is payable before graduation.

Special terms are granted to clergymen, candidates for the ministry, and missionaries.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION.

Applicants for admission to the School of the Political Sciences must present at the time of registration, or before, an official transcript giving evidence of acceptable grade for two years of work, amounting to at least sixty semester hours, in a college, or professional or scientific school, of approved standing. They must present also a statement of honorable dismissal from the institution at which they were last in attendance.

Students graduating from high schools who desire to enter the School of the Political Sciences will find it advantageous to complete the two years' admission requirements in the College of Liberal Arts of American University.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION.

The degree of Bachelor of Political Science will be conferred according to the following provisions:

1. The candidate must complete enough work in the School of the Political Sciences to make a total credit (including the credit presented for admission) of 120 semester hours.
2. An average of C in all work taken in the School of the Political Sciences is required for graduation. In determining grade points each hour of A counts three; each hour of B, two; and each hour of C, one. No grade points are given for work of grade D. An average of one is required.
3. The candidate must pursue studies in residence in the School of the Political Sciences of American University amounting to at least thirty semester hours credit.
4. The degree will be conferred only upon the recommendation of the faculty.

GRADES AND POINTS.

In addition to earning 60 semester, or quantity, credits, for graduation, each student must earn also 60 points, or quality credits. To earn these points, a student must average C for all courses taken.

Grades in courses are given and recorded as follows: A, excellent; B, good; C, fair; D, poor; F, failure; I, incomplete; X, condition. The mark I is given only when some portion of the student's work is unfinished. The mark may be removed and credit secured upon the completion of the work of the course so marked. The mark X may be removed and credit received by any means determined by the instructor in the course. A removed X usually becomes a D. Only one examination may be taken to remove an X, and this examination may not be taken until three weeks after the end of the semester in which the X was received.

Grade points are determined as follows: For each hour of A, three points; for each hour of B, two points; for each hour of C, one point. No grade points are given for work of grade D. Thus an average of C in all work taken at the College is required for graduation.

SCHOLARSHIPS.

By authority of the American University, the Academic Council is given permission to grant five scholarships to student graduates of colleges or universities in the United States and five scholarships to students recommended by the representatives of five foreign governments.

REGISTRATION

Students are required to register in person at the office of the School of Political Sciences, if possible, on or before one of the regular registration days—namely, Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of the opening week of the School. As a rule, students will not be admitted to classes after the third week of the semester.

ADVANCED DEGREES.

The Graduate School confers the following degrees: Master of Arts, Master of Political Sciences, and Doctor of Philosophy. The requirements are as follows:

MASTER OF ARTS AND MASTER OF POLITICAL SCIENCES.

The degree of Master of Arts may be conferred upon persons who have received a bachelor's degree from a college or scientific school of approved standing. It is expected that the graduate work will be carried on in the special field of the undergraduate major.

The degree of Master of Political Sciences may be conferred upon students whose major undergraduate work has been in the field of the political sciences—economics, history, government, diplomacy, international law, foreign trade, sociology, etc.

Residence Requirement.—The candidate must have pursued studies in residence in the Graduate School of the American University for a period equivalent to one full scholastic year. No credit toward the degree shall be given for work done elsewhere.

Majors and Minors.—A candidate for a Master's degree must present credit amounting to at least twenty-four semester hours in approved courses chosen from not more than three departments of study. At least twelve hours of this credit shall be for work in one department, and at least twelve hours ordinarily shall be from courses numbered in the 500 group of that department. The other twelve hours may be from courses numbered in the 400 group.

Foreign Languages.—A candidate for the degree of Master of Arts, or a candidate for the degree of Master of Political Sciences who majors in International Law or Diplomacy, shall give satisfactory evidence of being able to read the literature of his special field in at least one foreign language. An examination in the foreign language shall be passed before candidacy for the degree is approved.

Thesis.—In addition to completing twenty-four semester hours, the candidate must present a thesis on an approved topic in the field of his major subject. The subject of the thesis must be filed with the Dean not later than the first of November on a blank form furnished by the office, and the thesis itself must be filed with the Dean not later than the first Monday in April. The thesis must be printed or typewritten in prescribed form. Three copies must be furnished to the University Library. Thesis paper and covers will be obtained from the University.

Examination.—Candidates for the degree must pass a final oral examination on the thesis and on the entire field of his study, including major and minors, before a committee composed of at least three professors of the Graduate School.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY.

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy may be conferred on a student who has been granted a bachelor's degree by American University or by another institution of accepted standing under the following regulations:

Period of Study.—The minimum period required for securing the degree of Doctor of Philosophy is three years of graduate study, or the equivalent. The last year, or the first two years, must be spent in residence at the American University. Study for a specified time will in no case be regarded as sufficient ground for conferring the degree, but in all cases high attainments in scholarship and evidence of capacity for original investigation are demanded.

Majors and Minors.—The candidate will give at least two-thirds of his time (amounting to forty-eight semester hours, or the equivalent) to advanced work in one department of study, which shall constitute his primary subject. In addition, he will complete at least fourteen semester hours of work in a secondary subject approved by the department in which his primary subject lies, and by the Committee on Candidacy. The courses presented for credit in the secondary subject shall be chosen from courses numbered in the 400 or the 500 group. A total of at least seventy-two semester hours (or the equivalent), including a thesis, are required for the degree.

Preliminary Examination.—A student is not permitted to take the final examination for the degree until he has been formally admitted to candidacy. Not later than the first of November preceding the final examination, defined in the succeeding paragraph, the student shall file with the Dean of the Graduate School his application to be admitted to candidacy for the Doctor's degree. This application shall be referred to a committee of three persons, nominated by the Dean, one of whom shall be the head of the department in which the principal work is done. The committee shall conduct a preliminary examination, which may be written or oral (or both) covering the fields of the candidate's major, of his minor or minors, and covering also the investigation under way for a thesis. This committee shall report to the faculty (at its first meeting after such reference) concerning the preparation and general qualification of the candidate, and concerning his ability to read at sight at least two foreign languages, the literature of his primary subject, and shall make recommendations as to his acceptance, and shall indicate further requirements to be met.

Thesis.—The candidate must present a thesis upon an approved topic in the field of his major subject; this thesis must give evidence of original investigation, and will constitute a contribution to the knowledge of the subject treated.

Three typewritten copies of the completed thesis must be filed with the Dean not later than the 1st of April. The thesis must be approved by a committee of three persons, including the head of the major department, appointed by the Dean of the Graduate School. After the approval of the thesis by this committee, the candidate must furnish the University Librarian with one hundred printed copies of his thesis; or, in lieu thereof, he must file a bond for the estimated cost of publication as a guarantee that one hundred copies will be furnished the library within two years from the date of filing of the bond.

Selected parts, an abstract, or a digest of the completed thesis published in recognized scientific journals, and duly certified by the major department and approved by the Faculty, may be accepted in lieu of the publication requirements stated above. In this case the candidates must file one hundred reprints of these articles with the University Librarian.

Final Examination.—The final examination, which is both written and oral, is held between May 1 and May 25, and covers the major subject, including the thesis. The Dean of the Graduate School will appoint for each candidate an examining committee composed of at least five persons, the professor in charge of the major subject being chairman.

Candidates for advanced degrees majoring in the following subjects should consult the following professors as to their courses of study:

Political Science—Prof. Albert H. Putney.
International Law—Prof. Ellery C. Stowell.

SUGGESTED PRE-LEGAL CURRICULUM.

(The methods of legal education are in many respects very different in the United States than in nearly all other countries. Elsewhere legal education generally begins with the general and historical legal subjects, which are followed by the more special and technical subjects. In the law schools of the United States the student at once begins the subject of the technical specialized subjects, while the study of the general and historical legal subjects is only to be obtained in post-graduate work, which the great majority of law students never take at all. While it is much better to take such courses later, than not at all, nevertheless the logical place to take such subjects is before the student enters upon the kind of a curriculum offered by the American law schools, and therefore the American University offers courses of this character to undergraduate students. The following curriculum, which contains various legal subjects of a general or historical character is therefore suggested for those students who later intend to take up the study of law.)
